Agnew's lawyers subpoena newsmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's lawyers served subpoenas today on newsmen for a number of leading publications. The newsmen were directed to produce records of conversations they had with official sources about the Agnew kickback probe.

Subpoenas went to reporters on the Washington Star-News, Washington Post, New York Times and New York Daily News.

Time Magazine was served with a subpoena demanding to know who wrote or contributed to articles reporting that Agnew was headed toward an indictment in Maryland.

Newsweek Magazine was ordered to have all persons who contributed to an

Aug. 20 cover story appear. A subpoena also went to Stephan K. Leshner, Newsweek's Justice Department correspondent.

A subpoena also was to be served on Fred Graham of CBS news who on Sept. 22 quoted a source as saying he overheard Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen say of the Agnew case, "We've got the evidence, we've got it cold."

Petersen has denied that he ever made such a statement.

Graham was not in his office when a subpoena server arrived.

One of Agnew's attorneys, Judah Best, refused to discuss the subpoenas with newsmen. His secretary said Best instructed her to tell reporters there would be no comment.

Agnew's lawyers received authority from U. S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman to investigate what they claim were leaks from government prosecutors. The order gave the lawyers full power of subpoena.

Those subpoenaed were ordered to be at the federal courthouse in Baltimore, Md. next Thursday.

The New York Times, whose reporter Nick Gage was one of those summoned, said it believes "this attempt to force disclosure of confidential sources and information to be in violation of the First Amendment."

A Times spokesman said "we will vigorously oppose this step in the courts with all the resources at our command."

Richard Cohen of the Washington Post was another who received a subpoena. Benjamin C. Bradlee, executive editor of the Post, said "we are going to fight it as an invasion of the First Amendment."

William Sherman, a staff correspondent for the New York Daily News, and Washington Star-News reporters Robert Walters and Ronald Sarro also were served with subpoenas.

Managing Editor David Kraslow of the Star-News said the subpoenas were referred to the newspaper's attorneys.

The subpoenas to Walters and Sarro of the Star-News directed them to: "Bring with you all writings and other forms of record (including drafts) reflecting or related to direct or indirect communications between you or anyone on your behalf or associated with you and an officer or employee of the United States government or any other person who has asserted that he was or whom you have reason to believe was in direct or indirect communication with an officer or employee" of the federal government.

In an editorial, the Star-News said:

"If reporters are to be forced to reveal the sources of their information under threat of imprisonment, the flow of information to the public — essential to this open society — will be severely restricted."

The New York Times spokesman said that "unless reporters can use information from persons not in a position to have their names revealed, investigative reporting will be eliminated."

"Without investigative reporting, the press will not be able to look beneath the surface of the news and the purpose and function of a free press will be damaged severely."

The subpoena against Time magazine was served at the magazine's Washington office, according to Don Wilson, vice president for corporate and public affairs.

BULLETIN

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Justice Department today invited the House of Representatives to review allegations against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should the federal grand jury choose to indict the vice president.

To respond to Agnew contention

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Justice Department formally responds today to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's effort to stop the federal grand jury investigation of him.

A lengthy government brief is expected to rebut Agnew's contention that it is illegal to indict a vice president for any criminal offense.

Agnew's lawyers, in moving to halt the probe, said last week the Constitution clearly indicates that a vice president must be impeached by the House and convicted by the Senate before he can be tried in a criminal court. Agnew has requested a House investigation, but Speaker Carl Albert rejected the request at least for the present.

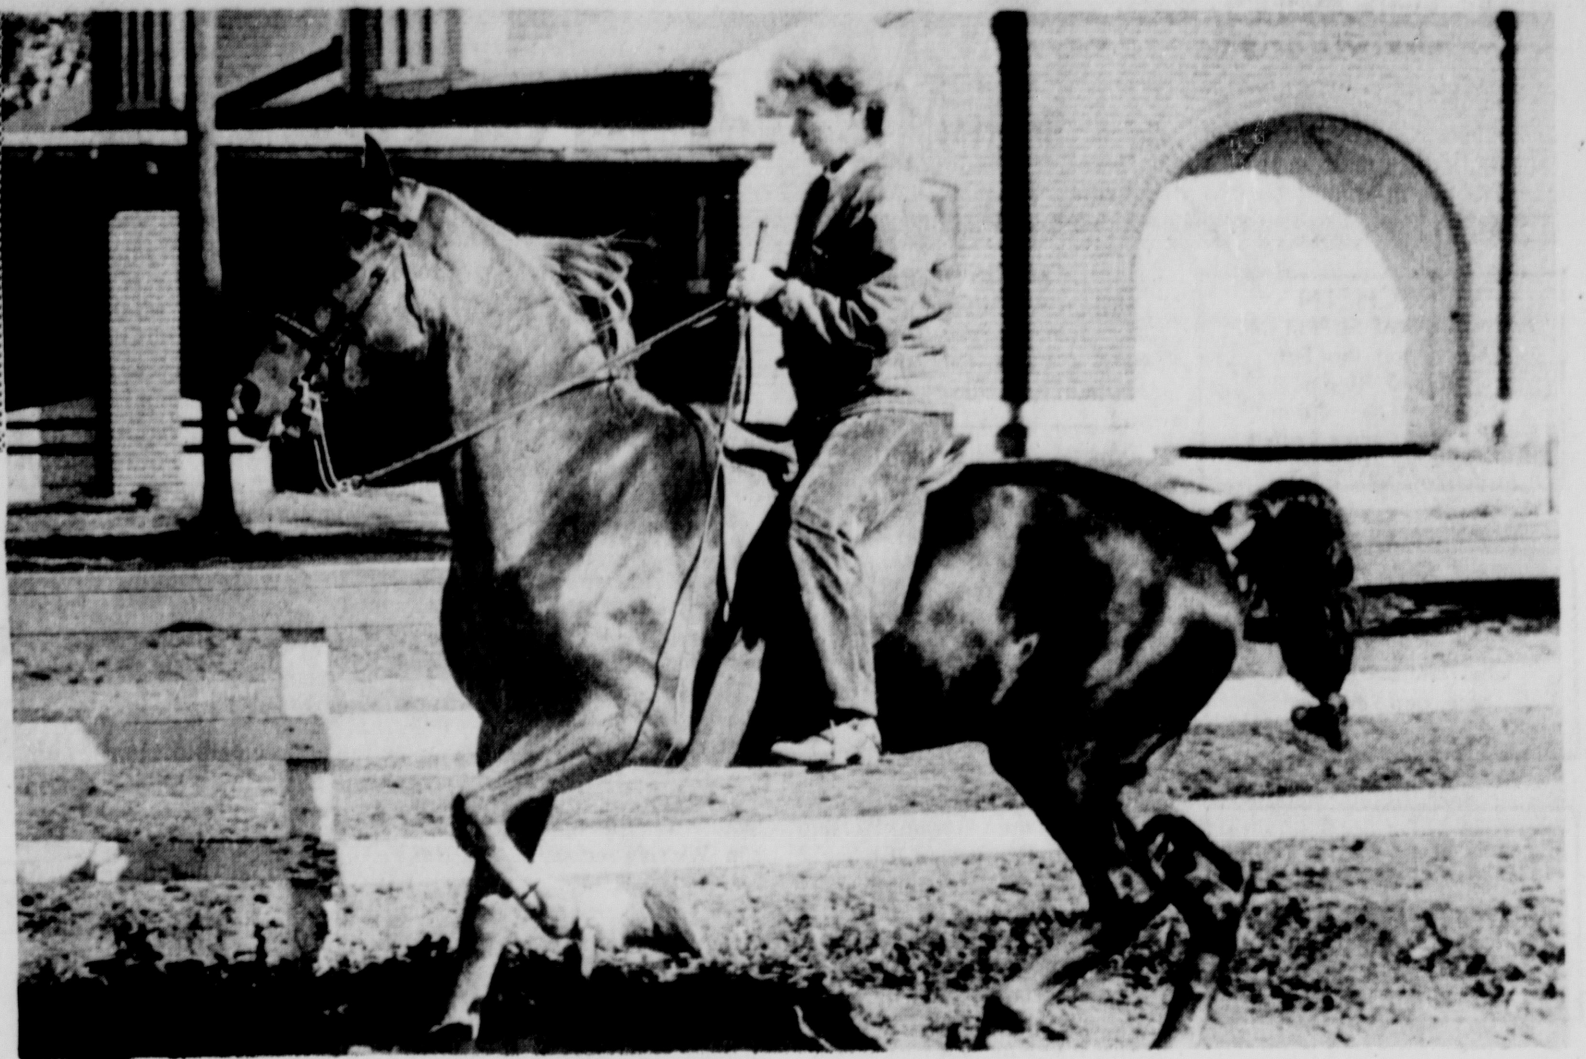

The government reply was ordered submitted by today by U.S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman.

The Justice Department is scheduled to answer by Monday Agnew's second challenge to the investigation, that federal prosecutors leaked information to the press in order to prejudice the jury against the vice president.

In letters to two newspapers Agnew rejected a suggestion that his own lawyers may have leaked information.

Agnew, in a Chicago speech Thursday night, avoided direct reference to the investigation.

The grand jury heard testimony from four witnesses for six hours Thursday, the same as Wednesday. It is expected to return to work next week, probably Wednesday.

Prepares for competition

Linda Scrivner, Nixa, Mo., puts her horse through his paces Friday morning at the Missouri State Fairgrounds in preparation for the ladies amateur class at the Midwest Walking Horse Trainers Association's annual show being held on the Fairgrounds through Saturday night. Nearly 300 of the three-gaited horses are expected to be shown with participants from more than a dozen midwestern states. The trainers compete for cash prizes and ribbons in the show, which starts at 7 p.m. each evening. Also included in the show is a class for fox trotting horses.

Black youths held for murder

BOSTON (AP) — Two black youths were charged with murder today in the brutal slaying of an elderly white fisherman who was stoned and stabbed to death by a gang of blacks near a low-income housing project.

Police also said they were close to making arrests in the death of a young woman who was doused with gasoline and burned on Wednesday. There were "strong leads" in the case, they said.

Capt. James McDonald said police had charged 15-and 16-year-old youths with murder and robbery in the death Thursday of the elderly man.

Meanwhile, residents of the predominantly black Dorchester and Roxbury sections of Boston lived in an atmosphere of fear from a week of violence in their neighborhood.

The 65-year-old man was stoned and stabbed by a band of 30 to 40 blacks in Dorchester on Thursday. The day before, a 24-year-old woman died after being drenched with gasoline and set afire in Roxbury.

"It's very possible that we won't track down 40 kids. But we will come up soon with a reasonable solution," said Sgt. Charles Deary, a police spokesman.

"Several arrests are imminent. The more people involved in something, the easier it is to break. You get one to talk and then another, and pretty soon, you're building a little data."

Extra police patrolled Boston's troubled Dorchester section today, and two schools shut down Thursday by a threat of further violence reopened this morning.

Police stayed out of the schools but were in the area and at a nearby subway station where black-white clashes occurred Thursday.

"We're ready for any happenings," said a police spokesman.

Meetings to discuss the volatile situation were called by top city and state officials.

Of the schools reopening, attendance was reported about normal at McCormack Junior High School. But James D. Supple, principal of Dever Elementary School, said many parents were afraid to send their children to his school.

"Parents of small children are much more apprehensive" than those with older youngsters, he said.

"No question the problem is racism and fear," said Chairman Paul R. Tierney of the Boston School Committee. "It's deteriorated to the point of these horrible murders and gone down to the level of children."

He was referring to the deaths of Evelyn Renee Wagler and Ludivico L. Barba, both of the predominantly black Roxbury area.

Mrs. Wagler was set afire Tuesday night by six black youths and died early Wednesday morning, according to police.

A witness to the killing of Barba told police that the youths first stoned him as he was fishing in the ocean, then stabbed him with his knife and rifled his pockets.

He lived only 20 minutes away and often

Rapid food price increases predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief economist said today consumers should expect rapid increases in food prices in the neighborhood of 10 per cent over the next six months before the rate levels off.

Dr. Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, gave the gloomy forecast at a news conference but still suggested that the inflation rate will be better than it was in the first half of this year.

Stein said that it will take some time before food supplies catch up with consumer demand and with rising incomes.

He said that possibly by the end of 1974, consumers might see some decline in food prices. But he said he is not very confident of that.

In the first half of this year, retail food prices have soared upward by more than 20 per cent. In predicting "fairly rapid rises in food prices" over the next six months, Stein said in response to a question that 10 per cent is "in the ball park" of what the administration feels will happen.

Stein also conceded that it was probably a mistake on the administration's part to put ceilings on meat earlier this year and to try to control farm prices indirectly.

But he said those moves probably helped in heading off more restrictive controls which he said might have caused more damage to the economy. The reference apparently was to moves in Congress to try to order price rollbacks.

Stein said that the sharp drop in wholesale prices in September will be reflected in retail food prices to some degree, but not as much as occurred in the wholesale price index.

The government reported Thursday that the wholesale price index declined 1.8 per cent last month, the greatest in any one month in 25 years. Farm, seed and food prices led the decline, falling a record six per cent for the month. Those declines, however, came after a leap of 5.8 per cent in the wholesale price index from July to August, the biggest one-month rise in 27 years.

Stein said the nation has "passed the worst of the economic fever of 1973." He said he stands by that statement even though he expects both food and other commodity prices to continue high.

Next year, he said, the economy should slow down to a point of sustained growth, avoiding a recession. He added that he does not favor a tax increase now to help along the slowdown.

Additional improvements for airport under study

City Council and Airport Board members met Thursday evening with Don Buller of Sammons and Buller Architects to begin forming plans for additional improvements at the Sedalia airport.

Council members toured the airport in the afternoon, viewing building progress and assessing what still needs to be accomplished.

Later, Buller showed drawings for what will later become a terminal building and maintenance hangar at the facility. Also included in the drawings were a "tank farm" which, according to airport manager Jim Abbas, will be used for storing jet fuel.

These planned improvements, board chairman Louis Hughes explained, do not reflect a pre-determined "phase of construction," but, rather, represent an order of priority.

The Airport Board needed tentative allocation of some $36,000 from the city before making application for federal funds in the near future. This will reportedly be followed by additional allocations during the city's next fiscal year.

Louis R. Hughes Jr., Airport Board chairman, presented figures showing that some $80,153 from the city's original $190,000 bond still remains. Hughes indicated that federal funds can probably be obtained at this time for use at the airport. Such assistance would represent 75 per cent of the total cost of expansion, Hughes said.

Federal funds could not be obtained for the maintenance hangar or tank farm, Hughes said. Such a facility will cost $110,240 and has been given top priority by the board since a maintenance facility is necessary for operation.

Total cost of the project for the city will be $170,956. With federal assistance, the total projected cost is $358,261.

This would include a terminal building, maintenance hangar and shop, taxi strip, tie-down paving, lighting, parking, and the tank farm. Not included in the eventual cost is the construction of "T" hangars which reportedly are not mandatory or eligible for federal funding.

"T" hangars must be built, however, within five years to justify a grant for a

May appoint watchdog

Justice Department moving toward new wiretap rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — In what it called a drive to regain public confidence, the Justice Department said it is moving toward new wiretap restrictions and may soon appoint its own internal watchdog.

Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus disclosed those developments in an interview Thursday and said the department also is studying whether federal marshals, and possibly even U.S. attorneys, should be career officials rather than political appointees.

In line with Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson's orders, Ruckelshaus refused to discuss most aspects of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's harsh attacks on the department and its investigation of kickback allegations against him.

To do so would only fuel the argument, Ruckelshaus maintained.

Ruckelshaus, the nation's No. 2 law enforcement official, said the department is undertaking a wiretap policy review to determine "whether there are additional safeguards whereby we can assure people that this power is not exercised frivolously."

Without identifying them, he said a broad range of proposals to implement Richardson's goals are under consideration. Some would require legislation, he added.

The study, he said, focuses on taps employed for national security reasons rather than for domestic criminal investigations. The latter are governed by relatively explicit law while national security taps are regulated less by law than by tradition.

Recent criticism has targeted on such national security taps as those used against 17 government officials and newsmen in the White House effort to determine how the Pentagon Papers were leaked.

Such taps now must be recommended by the FBI and authorized by the attorney general, who has said he will agree to them only to protect the nation against hostile acts by a foreign power, to obtain vital foreign intelligence information, or to protect U.S. secrets from foreign powers.

Discussing the internal watchdog unit, Ruckelshaus indicated that Richardson is on the verge of creating an inspector general's office primarily assigned to investigating "extraordinary situations" involving the department in widespread public debate.

The office could handle such cases as internal investigations for improper leaks of information to newsmen, he said.

The vice president and his lawyers repeatedly have accused the department of leaking damaging allegations in a campaign to drive him from office, charges Richardson has angrily denied.

Unemployment rate remains unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate stood stubbornly at 4.8 per cent of the work force in September, remaining essentially unchanged for the fourth straight month, the government said today.

The jobless rate failed to show any movement as a larger-than-expected number of teen-agers decided to remain on the job rather than returning to school, the Labor Department said.

As a result, there were almost offsetting declines in the total work force — the number of people holding or seeking jobs — and the number of people working. The number of unemployed — persons without jobs but seeking employment — remained essentially unchanged at 4.3 million.

However, the government, using seasonal adjustment factors, figured that total employment advanced by 700,000. The work force was up by 750,000 on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Seasonal adjustment is used by government statisticians to discount seasonal fluctuations in job patterns.

The September figures are a classic example of the way that technique can show a rise in the number of people working and the labor force when there is an actual decline.

There were small actual declines in the work force and the number of people working. But because these declines were not as sharp as usual for this time of year, the government reported paper increases.

The Nixon administration has predicted that the jobless rate would fall to about 4.5 per cent of the work force by the end of the year, then remain at that level well into next year.

For heads of households it was 2.7 per cent, married men 2.1 per cent, adult men 3.1 per cent, adult women 4.8 per cent and teen-agers 14.4 per cent.

For black workers, the unemployment rates held at 9.4 per cent. It was 4.2 per cent for white workers.

For Vietnam veterans from 20 to 24, the jobless rate fell from 10.1 per cent to 7.6 per cent. But this rate was still higher than for nonveterans of the same age.

Businesses and city offices not closing

Most local county, state and federal employes will get a one-day vacation Monday in observance of Columbus Day, now a nationally recognized legal holiday.

All offices in the Pettis County Courthouse and Federal Building will be closed, with the Post Office adopting a holiday service schedule, it was learned. All offices at the Municipal Building will remain open. City Clerk Ralph Dedrick indicated Friday.

Postmaster Maurice Hogan announced that there would be no regular rural or city mail delivery Monday. However, there will be regular special delivery service and collection from all city collection boxes. A service window will be open Monday from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 a.m. to accommodate box customers.

City businesses also plan to remain open on the holiday. Sedalia Chamber of Commerce Secretary Mrs. Vivian Warren said.

Look for 4-H section Sunday

Pettis County 4-H clubs will observe national 4-H week Oct. 7-13 with the theme "4-H gets it all together." In cooperation with local 4-H clubs, The Sedalia Democrat is "getting it all together" with a special section in Sunday's edition.

This section will feature local and national news about the progress of 4-H clubs and the special activities of this past year.

Sunday's section also will include articles on 4-H summer camp, an all-boy cooking class, the out-state Youth Exchange and other local activities.

'Common cup' questioned

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sanitation and sanctity sometimes spark some slight skirmishing. At issue in such cases is whether systems of spiritual sustenance subscribe sufficiently to sanitary safeguards.

The question has come up repeatedly in regard to worshippers using a "common cup" in partaking of the wine of Holy Communion, as is done in Episcopal, many Lutheran and some other churches.

Despite recurrent assumptions that this might spread germs, a new scientific study finds there is little chance of it.

Dr. Edward P. Danciewicz, of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, says tests show that relatively few organisms remain on the rim of the chalice after one individual sips from the cup.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, he says the number of bacteria on a person's lips is small, and even on the minor chance that disease-bearing bacteria are present, there is little risk of swallowing them.

Even if it happened, he adds, the body can deal effectively with a small number of such bacteria. He says the chances of it, however, are further reduced by a customary practicing of wiping the cup's edge before it is passed on.

The findings are similar to those of past studies, although state health boards sometimes raise questions about it. Because of this, many Protestant groups — Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and others — switched in the last century to using small, individual cups.

Another hygienic issue, this one concerning baptism, came up recently in Nashville, Tenn., where health officials ordered a water-sampling survey of church baptistries.

Dr. Joseph Bistowish, director of the city's health department, said he took the action after learning that some churches "empty baptistries only once every month or two."

He said they should be emptied after every baptismal service unless they are hand-chlorinated and have circulation and filtration systems. Few have such equipment.

Moad, former executive director of the Synod of Missouri Presbyterian Foundation, will be the guest speaker Sunday through Friday at special services at the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church, Mr. Moad, Independence, who presently is serving as director of public relations and sales for the Westminster Gerontology Foundation Inc., will preach at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

Elections held for posts at Faith School

The student body of The Faith Christian School, 2331 South Ingram, has selected a student council, student body officers, school colors and a school newspaper name, Thomas E. Allen, principal, announced recently.

Cathy McGinnis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGinnis, 1315 South Porter, was elected president of the student council. The council consists of one person per grade from the second through the ninth grade.

The school newspaper was named by Derek Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob L. Smith, 171 Summer Ave. The name chosen was Faith Christian Witness. Derek, a pre-schooler, had his name chosen from several submitted by the school students.

Allen also announced that red and white have been selected as school colors. Cheerleaders for the school are Cathy McGinnis, Pam Keele, Sandy Shippis and Donna Jesse, he added.

Rev. John Bush
council head

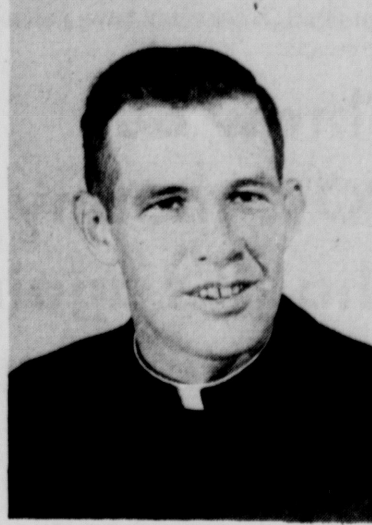

The Rev. John C. Bush has resigned from his position as executive director of the Interchurch Coordinating Council, which is based in Clinton.

Mr. Bush will serve until the end of the year. He has accepted the position of executive director of the Kentucky Council of Churches.

Following the resignation notice, a special committee was appointed by ICC moderator, the Rev. Eugene Moll, to begin developing procedures for finding a new executive head.

Under Mr. Bush's direction the council has been active in ministry programs to the Stockton and Pomme de Terre lakes region, mental health, economic development, and social and ecological problems.

Mr. Bush was the first executive director of ICC.

Disappointment voiced by many Episcopalians

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Keen, sometimes fearful disappointment was voiced today by many representatives of the Episcopal Church after its convention refused to admit women to its priesthood.

"There's some real heart-break about it," said the Rev. Canon Charles Perry of Washington, D.C., coordinator for a committee on women's ordination.

Earlier Thursday, the lay-clergy branch of the church's bicameral legislature, the 900-member House of Deputies, confirmed the Right Rev. John M. Allin of Jackson, Miss., to become the denomination's new presiding bishop.

The hairs-breadth defeat of the proposal to permit ordination of women came in a complex bloc-voting system that rejected it even though a majority of individual votes actually were for it.

Afterward, several young women who had been seeking clerical orders stood in clusters, their cheeks wet with tears as friends sought to comfort them.

Those who opposed the move insisted that preservation of an exclusively male clergy was essential to maintain the church's tradition and further relationships with Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy, which do not ordain women.

Most major Protestant denominations do.

The election of Allin, considered a conservative, brought some dissent among the deputies, who in the past never questioned concurrence in the choice made by the 200-member House of Bishops.

Youth burned
in home mishap

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Roy Arthur Probst, 16, suffered second and third-degree burns over 62 per cent of his body Thursday while preparing to clean paint brushes with gasoline.

The boy was carrying a can of gasoline past the furnace and water heater in his home when the fumes ignited.

Probst ran to the front yard where firemen found him sitting and screaming with remnants of his clothing smoldering.

The youth was taken to the University of Kansas Medical Center's burn clinic. His condition was listed as critical.

Storm had little effect on county work

Wednesday night's storm did not seriously hamper clean-up projects now under way in Pettis County, County Engineer Ed Hall said Friday.

"I haven't seen too much damage so far," said Hall, who made an inspection trip through some parts of the county Thursday. "It could have been worse."

Hall said the only significant damage was to a bridge in the northwest corner of the county.

Hall indicated that the storm damage may be eligible for federal disaster funds, similar to those which the county recently received in connection with the spring flooding.

He said he would contact authorities Friday to see if the county would be eligible for additional financial assistance.

Most of the repair projects from last spring's floods have been started. The county recently received an advance payment of about $50,000 of federal flood relief funds.

St. Louis newspaper strike ended

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A strike that left St. Louis without its two daily newspapers for 44 days ended Thursday night when Teamsters overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The pact, which included a $1.10 hourly pay increase over the contract's life and a compromise formula on the use of dockhands, was passed by a 180 to 5 margin during a ratification meeting by Teamster Union Local 610. Under the old contract, workers were paid $6.58 per hour.

Newstands have been bare since Teamsters walked off the job Aug. 22, shutting down the Post and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat which is printed by the Post under contract.

The Globe-Democrat said it hoped to be back on the streets Monday morning and the first weekend edition of the Post-Dispatch in seven weeks was to be printed for Sunday.

"Sure I'm glad to be going back to work," a delivery truck driver said as he left the ratification meeting. "I've been ready to go back since the first day."

A dispute over the use of dockhands at the Post automated printing plant in St. Louis County was the main stumbling block in reaching a settlement, which finally came after a 12-hour marathon bargaining session that ended early Thursday.

Harland Horn, Teamster secretary-treasurer, said the new contract represents a compromise in which the dockhands' jobs are protected but the number of shifts they are allowed to work each week is reduced.

"We had to give a lot on the issue, but all the jobs are protected," said John Metz, union vice president.

A Post-Dispatch spokesman said the new pact means that force reduction will be achieved through "attrition or inducement or by voluntary reassignment of dockhands to drivers' positions."

"The agreement confirmed management's right to reduce the force of dockhands following the introduction of automated equipment," the spokesman added.

The union represents about 170 delivery truck drivers and 32 dockhands. The strike idled about 2,000 employees at the Post and another 250 at the Globe.

Jewelry store theft probe is continuing

Police Chief William Miller said Friday morning that police are continuing their investigation into the theft of $3,425 in jewelry from a window of Zurcher's Jewelers, 231 South Ohio, during Wednesday night's violent storm.

Miller said that police are "following up a couple of leads" but declined to say whether or not there are any suspects in the case.

Miller said that the storm was probably used as a cover for the theft since it apparently occurred just after the storm hit the Sedalia area.

"Obviously the opportunity was there and they just took advantage of it," said Miller.

The thieves broke out a front window of the shop and made off with a number of diamond wedding and engagement rings and a man's wrist watch. The window itself was valued at $225. The theft was discovered by a sheriff's deputy shortly after 7 p.m. Wednesday.

In other police news, two juveniles were arrested by police shortly after noon Wednesday in connection with the theft of a purse Tuesday evening from a car belonging to Mildred Johnson, 1318 South Park.

The incident reportedly occurred while Mrs. Johnson, owner of Millie's Dine-R-Ette, 16th and Osage, was in the diner. A cook in the diner reportedly saw some boys walking around Mrs. Johnson's car and then saw them run around the corner of the building and then drive off at a high rate of speed.

Mrs. Johnson told police that a $50 bill, three $20's and an undetermined amount in smaller bills as well as credit cards were in the purse.

The two juveniles, ages 15 and 16, were turned over to juvenile authorities following their arrest.

Storage shed, not trailer, damaged

It was erroneously reported in Thursday's Democrat that a trailer belonging to Betty Lemens, 110 Colonial Lane, Heritage Village, had been overturned during Wednesday's storm.

It has since been learned that it was a storage shed belonging to Mrs. Lemens that overturned, not her trailer. Another storage shed, owned by Charles Miller, 249 Colonial Lane, also overturned in the storm.

Warrensburg girl killed in crash

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Donna Bracken, 19, of Warrensburg, was killed Thursday afternoon in an accident at an intersection on Missouri 13 about 13 miles north of Warrensburg.

The highway patrol said Miss Bracken's car collided with a truck driven by Harold Saunders, 35, of Warrensburg, who was making a left turn.

Women's prison inmate escapes

(Democrat-Capital Service)

TIPTON — A 29-year-old woman escaped from the Missouri State Women's Prison here Thursday night, Dorothy Stoll, acting superintendent, said Friday.

Supt. Stoll identified the woman as Mary Ann Nelson, Piedmont, Mo., who had been at the prison since Aug. 31. She was serving a two-year sentence on a forgery charge.

Supt. Stoll said the escape took place between 8 and 10 p.m. Thursday. "We still don't know how she got out of the institution," Supt. Stoll said. "The place was locked when she left here."

The Nelson woman was described as a white female, five-feet, three-inches tall, with brown hair. Supt. Stoll said the woman's husband, who had been seen in Tipton this week, may have assisted her in the escape.

Throw out POW mutiny charges again

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time, the secretaries of the Army and Navy have decided to throw out mutiny charges against four Army and Marine enlisted men who were war prisoners in North Vietnam.

Pentagon sources said Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway and Secretary of the Navy John W. Warner would cite lack of evidence, the same grounds for dismissing earlier charges against the two soldiers and two Marines.

Affected by the new Callaway and Warner decisions are Army S. Sgts. James A. Daly Jr. of Brooklyn, N.Y., and John A. Young of Grayslake, Ill.; Marine S. Sgt. Alfonso Riate of Santa Rosa, Calif., and Marine Pvt. Frederick L. Elbert of Brentwood, N.Y.

The new actions, which were expected, clear the books of all formal charges against any of the 566 Americans who returned from North Vietnamese captivity early this year.

Three other enlisted men also were accused of mutiny, but they are now out of the Army and beyond the reach of military law. They, too, had been cleared previously of aiding the enemy and other misconduct charges. An eighth enlisted former POW shot himself to death before the first charges were dropped in early July.

Last week, Warner dismissed mutiny and other misconduct charges against a Navy captain and a Marine lieutenant colonel but formally censured them for "failing to meet the standards expected of officers" while they were POWs. The two officers are retiring.

The first set of accusations against the eight enlisted men were brought in late May by Air Force Col. Theodore W. Guy, who commanded a POW compound for nearly five years.

It took a little more than a month for the service secretaries to decide there was insufficient evidence to warrant further legal action leading to possible courts-martial.

Army lawyers acknowledged they had recommended dismissal of the charges without questioning 15 to 20 other former war prisoners who had been listed by Guy as potential witnesses against the accused soldiers and Marines. At the same time, other Pentagon legal sources said the Navy-Marine inquiry was less thorough than normal.

A few weeks later, Air Force Maj. Edward W. Leonard Jr., another former POW and a friend of Guy, accused the Army of failing to investigate Guy's allegations adequately. Leonard then filed new mutiny charges against the seven surviving enlisted men.

This time, the investigation took more than two months. Army lawyers said they questioned about 65 former POWs before forwarding their recommendations for dispositions of the charges.

walked to the Bayside Mall area to fish, said his 55-year-old widow, Verna. She said they had been married a year.

Tierney, who called on Mayor Kevin H. White to meet with community leaders about the problem, said it was better to have pupils in school where police security was available than on the streets.

McCormack Junior High and Dever Elementary schools were closed Thursday morning because it was feared trouble might erupt a half mile away when 100 to 200 hostile youths gathered, authorities said.

That gathering produced no conflict, but police said that bands of black youths later roamed the low-income Columbia Point Housing Project, where Barba was killed. Another white man was stabbed and a white woman was hit with a bottle and robbed.

Police Commissioner Robert J. diGrazia said all three incidents occurred within 20 minutes. Police Supt. Jeremiah P. Sullivan said the attacks "are definitely tied together."

One 16-year-old black youth was arrested Thursday night and charged with armed robbery with a knife in the attack on Ronald Leonard, 37, of Revere, a furniture truck driver who was stabbed in an apartment hallway. Police also were questioning another youth.

Leonard was reported in good condition but still on the danger list at City Hospital. The woman hit with the bottle—Clare Oates, 28, of Quincy—was treated at a hospital for a head cut and released.

Mayor White said on Thursday that the city was offering a $5,000 reward for information about the six blacks who murdered Mrs. Wagler.

Mrs. Wagler, a carpenter, was in this country on a German visa and had come to Boston from Chicago to stay with friends in Roxbury.

Nixon, lawyer for Agnew at Key Biscayne

KEY BISCAINE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon, here for his first weekend stay in seven weeks, brought with him a White House lawyer closely associated with the Watergate tapes case and the problems of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Special Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt was among four Nixon aides who flew here with the President Thursday afternoon. The others were Staff Chief Alexander M. Haig Jr., Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and speechwriter Patrick J. Buchanan.

Besides helping prepare Nixon's legal defense against surrendering White House tapes to Watergate investigators, Buzhardt participated in negotiations between the Justice Department and Agnew's attorneys. Federal prosecutors subsequently began presenting bribery and kickback allegations against Agnew to a grand jury in Baltimore.

Joining the presidential party here was counselor Bryce N. Harlow who last month flew secretly to Phoenix to discuss Agnew's situation with Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.). Buzhardt, it was learned, also made that trip.

Buchanan, a political conservative, has written some Agnew speeches in the past, but none recently.

Ziegler said Nixon has "nothing specific" to discuss with Buzhardt and Buchanan but wanted them here just in case he decided to review something with them. Buchanan said he was getting some rest.

Mrs. Nixon remained in Washington. Her staff said she had some "personal things" to attend to during the weekend.

Nixon is expected to return to the capital Monday.

Shortly after the President's arrival here, the White House announced he had signed legislation providing stopgap funds through Oct. 11 for departments and agencies that have yet to get their regular appropriations for the fiscal year that began July 1.

Municipal Building front doors open

The main doors to the Municipal Building, Third and Kentucky, are now open for public use.

The double doors, located on the east side of the building, facing Osage, have been closed since the building opened in order for the bricks to be laid for the mall now under construction.

Anyone conducting business in the Municipal Building up until now had to use the door to the police department.

Irish rule agreement is sought

BELFAST (AP) — Former Northern Ireland Prime Minister Brian Faulkner took a hard bargaining position today at the start of interparty talks with rival Roman Catholic leaders.

He said the strife-torn province's Protestant majority would insist on preserving its ascendancy as faction leaders met to try to agree on a 12-man cabinet to govern Ulster's one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics.

If they fail, Britain may take away the province's separate identity and absorb it—a move most Protestants and Catholics would bitterly oppose. Many Catholics seek to unite Ulster with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

Police and British soldiers ringed Stormont Castle where the meeting was taking place, in anticipation of any possible violence by either Protestant or Catholic extremists. The hilltop castle was once the seat of Northern Ireland's old Protestant parliament which Britain abolished 18 months ago.

The two main participants in the meeting are the Social Democrats, a Catholic party, and the Unionists, who are Protestants. Clergyman Ian Paisley was expected to present a radical Protestant point of view. The liberal, nonsectarian Alliance party also planned to attend.

Militant Protestant factions have opposed sharing their power with the Catholics all along and last week said they would not attend the conference. The militant Catholic Irish Republican Army also has thrown cold water on the session.

Britain's administrator for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, was to preside. The Unionists want to keep Ulster's links with Britain while retaining a degree of autonomy, while the Social Democrats look to the eventual union of the province with the Irish Republic, its Catholic neighbor.

Cason urges session on reorganization

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo (AP) — Sen. William J. Cason, president pro tem of the Missouri Senate, today urged Gov. Christopher S. Bond to call a special session of the legislature to work on a bill to reorganize state government.

Bond, who vetoed a reorganization bill passed by the legislature last June, was not immediately available for comment. But he has said previously he did not intend to call a special session on reorganization.

Earlier this week, Bond named a citizens advisory committee to help him review the executive branch of government and make recommendations for a new bill, which Bond plans to present to the legislature when it reconvenes in January.

Cason, a Democrat from Clinton, said there is no guarantee the legislature can pass another bill yet this year, but said "the consequences if we don't are frightening."

Cason added: "The problems of budgeting and appropriations will be almost insurmountable if we have to wait until next year to get started."

Cason was the sponsor of a lengthy Senate bill on reorganization in the last session. The bill that was finally passed was a compromise version between Cason's bill and one in the House.

The governor has a meeting scheduled for next Wednesday with Sens. Cason, Albert Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, and A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood. The topic is reorganization.

New hospital wing financing discussed

The Bothwell Hospital Board of Trustees, meeting in executive session Tuesday, discussed alternatives toward raising funds to finance equipment and furnishings for the new wing of the hospital, according to Ray Jiedel, assistant administrator.

Jiedel said that the board may, at its Oct. 16 meeting, announce the nature of the drive and name campaign chairmen.

He indicated that a fund raising goal will be set as soon as he determines how much money will be needed to finance equipment and furnishings for the new wing.

Refugees problem in Cambodia

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — That part of Cambodia still under government control is on its way to becoming a vast refugee camp.

The statistics tell you that: more than a million Cambodians — one in every seven — displaced by the war and in need of help, barely a corner of the country left untouched by the human uprooting.

You see it in any direction you travel: families trudging along the sides of highways, their property shrunken to what they can pile onto the two-wheeled, cattle-drawn carts.

People, most of them farmers living in small villages, flee their homes in the face of rebel attacks or when their home-grounds become battlegrounds between insurgent and government forces.

They don't go farther than they have to, but often that means long treks to Phnom Penh or distant provincial capitals where handouts or jobs are more readily available and the prospects for safety greater.

Some return to their homes only to be driven out again. Others become refugees whose status one American aid official described as "temporary on an indefinite basis."

"When they flee from their villages, they carry some of the family valuables. They sell them and can live on that for one or two months perhaps," says Loeung Nal, the minister for refugees. "After that, they have nothing and somebody must take care of them. The longer the war lasts the greater the problem becomes."

The minister admitted the government cannot now meet the needs of the refugees or solve the mammoth economic, social and political problems arising from a population one-seventh drift.

This year, the government has set aside a fraction of one per cent of planned national expenditures for refugee care. It comes to $124,000, or about 12 cents a refugee a year.

Government efforts thus far have focused on rice distribution and housing for refugees in the Phnom Penh area, leaving most problems of the provinces in the hands of local authorities.

"We can only hope to provide enough so that they will not die," Nal said.

As with guns and butter, the Cambodian government relies on the United States and other countries for large infusions of aid for its refugee program.

The U.S. government has budgeted $4 million in such aid for Cambodia this fiscal year but one embassy official said, "We don't want to set up a vast aid apparatus like we had in Vietnam."

Consequently the money is funneled through several international relief organizations — principally Catholic Relief Service, CARE, World Vision, the International Red Cross. These groups also add their own resources and go out and do the work.

Food, shelter, clothing and medicine are the priority items, with food basically rice and dried fish and shelter ranging from a few square yards of plastic sheeting to hinder the monsoon rains to thatched roof barracks.

The second phase of government-relief organization aid attempts to provide sources of income for displaced families.

National fire prevention week begins Sunday and will run through the following Saturday with the Sedalia fire department conducting inspections and fire drills at local schools.

The assistant state fire marshal, Richard Dyer of Jefferson City, will speak at a Rotary club meeting Monday, according to fire chief Willis Jabas.

Sedalia firefighters will be touring local schools Monday also and conducting fire drills.

Wednesday, Ed Walters of Central Missouri Electric, will present a program on fire safety at area schools. Also conducted Wednesday will be an inspection of business district and shopping centers by Sedalia firemen.

Also planned by Jabas is an inspection of area nursing homes.

Patrolman gets 90-day suspension

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Board of Police Commissioners suspended patrolman Larry J. Dickstein, 26, Thursday for 90 days on a charge of using excessive force during an arrest.

At a hearing before the board, Dickstein admitted he lost his temper and kicked Robert L. Reed while Reed was lying on the ground and handcuffed, about 5 a.m. June 14.

Dickstein, a patrolman for two years, said Reed drove through a red light and he had to chase him to make the arrest. He said Reed twice tried to flee.

'Large ball of fire' strikes truck driver

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — A physicist here said he will conduct further tests on a pair of eyeglasses belonging to a truck driver who said he saw a flying object and then was hit in the face by a ball of fire that temporarily blinded him.

Dr. Harley Rutledge, head of the physics department at Southeast Missouri State University, said Thursday he had examined the broken eyeglasses of Eddie D. Webb and found the plastic frames had been burned.

Webb, 45, told the highway patrol he was driving his tractor-trailer truck on Interstate 55 Wednesday, south of Jackson, when he saw "a light on a large aluminum object in the air" behind him.

"I could see half of it in the rear-view mirror. It was shaped like a turnip and covered both lanes. The center section was steady, but top and bottom was spinning around with red, and yellow lights," Webb said.

Webb told troopers he awoke his wife, who was sleeping in the cab, but she didn't see anything. He stuck his head out the window to look behind and "a large ball of fire struck him about the head and face," the patrol report said.

Webb's glasses were broken and his wife drove the truck to Southeast Missouri Hospital. Col. Sam Smith, superintendent of the highway patrol, said Webb's vision did not seem to be impaired when he was released Thursday, but he was to have further examination.

"I don't know what it was. People want me to say it was a flying saucer, but I can't say that. I just don't know," Webb said. "I always thought people that saw those things were cra-

Women honored for effort

Three women who led a local effort to purchase two historic urns for placement on the new Municipal Building mall recently received city seal plaques from Mayor Jerry Jones in honor of their efforts.

Mrs. Cline Cain, 805 West Broadway; Mrs. James McNeil, 1617 West Seventh; and Mrs. David Malmo, 2614 Plaza began their effort Sept. 24, five days before the urns were to be sold. By Sept. 29, the date of the sale, they had secured enough money to purchase the urns for $580 each.

"We were just tickled to death to get the awards," Mrs. Cain said. "We had done several things before, but we certainly never got recognition of this kind before."

Commenting on his action, Jones said he "just wanted to recognize the effort these ladies made in collecting the funds and being there on auction day."

The auction was a sale of property formerly belonging to Mrs. Beulah Salisbury, with the two urns having formerly been owned by Col. A. D. Jaynes, a pioneer Sedalia developer.

The plaques are a foot-square polished walnut slab with the city seal drawn on a ceramic tile in the middle of the plaque.

Ann Landers

Anonymous letter opens worm can

Dear Ann Landers: Your letter from the "Anonymous Lady" who is having an affair with her doctor really tore it. My husband called it to my attention the first thing this morning.

For eight years I've been trying to convince the dolt that I should have an annual physical, complete with Pap test. I've told him repeatedly that a nurse is always present during these examinations and that my gynecologist is very impersonal and highly ethical.

My husband has the crazy idea that most doctors fool around with their women patients during examinations and the women love it. In recent years I've avoided telling my husband about my visits to the doctor because it always ended up with him making some rotten, uncalled-for remark and he wouldn't speak to me for three days.

That idiotic letter from the nut who is carrying on with her crazy doctor (she asked if she should tell her psychiatrist or would he sic the Medical Society on him) opened up that old can of worms.

I enjoy your column usually, but not today. — Miffed In Mpls.

Dear Miss: Anyone who reads Ann Landers regularly is sure to run into a letter that can be used against somebody, sooner or later.

This column touches on every facet of life, the bizarre and the commonplace, the best in human nature and the worst. That letter proved once again that there are plenty of screwballs around and some of them are physicians, which should come as no surprise. I should have emphasized more strongly that the basis for a good therapeutic relationship is complete confidence. "Secrets" between a patient and a psychiatrist are never divulged.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't you have any Scottish friends? Surely you could have asked someone to help you with that question. "Do Scotsmen wear anything under their kilts?"

I herewith quote the answer given to me by an old major who taught me to play the bagpipes. I asked him the same question. He replied, "I dinna ken, laddie, but if there's war again, I'll join the English army for I'll be damned if I'll go through another winter naked up to the waist." — Just Call Me Mac

Dear Mac: I've yet to meet a true Scotsman who would have joined the English army because of a few icy blasts — or for any OTHER reason!

Dear Ann: All soft soap aside, I can't go along with your mushy approval of the woman who telephoned her gray-haired mother from the office umpteen times a day.

Any woman who uses a business phone for personal calls is guilty of gross abuse of office equipment. She is also using the boss's time. He is not paying her to telephone her mother.

Time spent on the phone is time NOT spent doing the work for which she was hired. This is unfair to the other employees in that office, because obviously someone must do it. You goofed, Annabell. — A Worker, Not A Talker

Dear Worker: Sorry, I don't agree. There are values here that outweigh the ones you've mentioned. Some phone calls take less time than is required to write a letter to Ann Landers, such as the one you just wrote — on office stationery and I'll bet, on office time.

Polly's pointers

Taking up slacks is her pet peeve

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns women's slacks. So many of them are made of heavy knit that is bundlesome. The waistband is made of the same material and a big wide piece of elastic is inserted inside that is always so tight it makes one feel like there is an inflated tube around the waist. I remove such bands, replace with a soft facing and use smaller elastic. This is a lot of trouble to go to with a new garment. They also sew the wide elastic to the band and slacks so the elastic cannot be pulled out and the entire band has to come off and be redone. — MRS. T.J.

Polly problem

DEAR POLLY — I do hope someone has help for a man who wants to know how to clean pewter that has become black and badly tarnished. Also, how can one be certain whether or not a piece of pewter is coated with silver? — CARLIE

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. L.W.B. can clean her washing machine screen strainer by soaking it in vinegar, diluted if desired. I soaked mine overnight and then used an old toothbrush to scrub it under running water to make it look like new. (Polly's note — Such cleaning should be necessary only occasionally. Cleaning with a brush after each use should keep the strainer in good shape. I also find a crumpled paper towel works well when used just after each wash load.) — RUTH

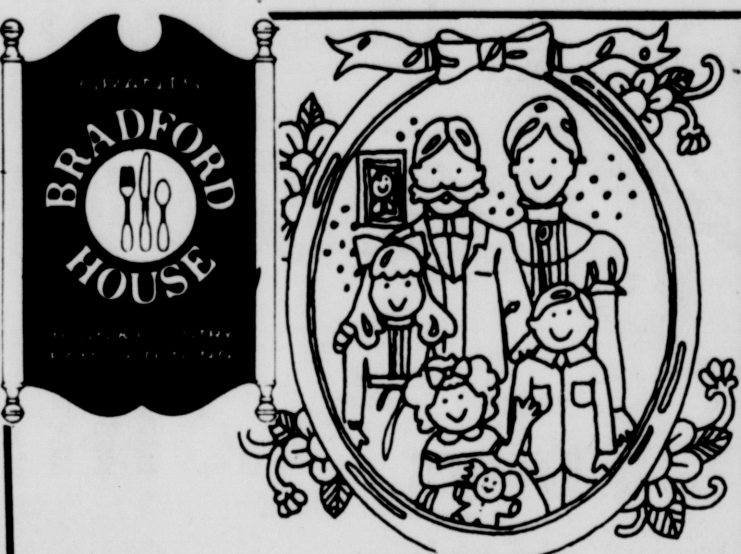

DEAR POLLY — I fastened a single wood embroidery hoop to the outer corner of my ironing board. Before I plug in the iron cord, I slip it through the hoop and the cord slides back and forth through the hoop and is not in the way as I iron. I use a large safety pin to fasten the hoop and leave it there all the time. Friends and relatives all seem to like this idea very much. — MRS. S.E.

DEAR POLLY — When I'm giving a dinner party the gravy boat always seems to empty the quickest. By the time the guests are ready for seconds of gravy it is cold. I solved the problem by using my fondue pot over the flame so it keeps warm. It holds more gravy, too. — SUSAN

DEAR POLLY — Until recently, we had trying times with dogs digging holes in our lawn. Finally I dumped coffee grounds into the ill-favored spots, spread some on the grass to keep the grounds from showing and to date no more dogs digging. — MRS. A.A.A.

DEAR POLLY — When you only have a small piece of meat or two chops or two pieces of chicken to broil, put a cake rack in an iron skillet, place in a hot oven to cook. This saves cleaning the large broiler pan. — E.R.B.

Two convicted on charges of kidnaping

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two men were convicted by a U.S. District Court jury Thursday of charges of kidnaping an Amoret, Mo., couple in an unsuccessful bank robbery attempt June 6.

Lewis Larson, 50, Minneapolis, Minn., and Alvie Smith, 52, Kansas City, were convicted of abducting Mrs. Dorothy Gaston, an assistant cashier of the Bank of Amoret, Mo., and her husband, Cecil Gaston.

In testimony, Gaston said the two men first abducted his wife, and when they learned she could not open the bank's vault because of a time lock, they returned to the couple's home and abducted him.

Gaston said they were taken on a ride around Amoret by the two armed men until the two were arrested at a roadblock by Missouri Highway Patrol officers. Authorities were alerted by a neighbor who had witnessed the abductions.

Warns possible repeat on Soviet grain scheme

By ELON TORRENCE
Associated Press Writer

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A University of Kansas expert on Soviet Union agriculture said today the Russians may have a carefully planned scheme to repeat their 1972 U.S. grain deal.

Dr. R. D. Laird, political science professor, pointed to an estimate this week of record Soviet grain production for 1973 and its depressing effect on the world wheat market.

Laird said the Russians pulled a coup last year in purchasing U.S. wheat at low, government-subsidized prices.

But he said that even if the Soviets achieve record grain production this year, it may be a desperate one-time achievement.

He said he is convinced Russia will pay dearly for its efforts to give grain production a big boost.

Early this week, the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated this year's Soviet grain crop at a record 195 million metric tons.

Laird said he does not disagree. But he said this estimate, without qualification, leaves much unsaid.

"I knew as sure as the sun rises each day what was going to happen to the grain market," said the Kansas professor, who has written several books and articles on Soviet agriculture.

Laird said wheat futures plunged the limit the day after the Department of Agriculture announced its estimate.

Russian publications have revealed the Soviets planted an additional 25 million acres to grain in 1973, Laird said, adding:

"It represents a violation of the basically sound cropping practices of the Brezhnev regime."

He said the added acreage is equal to the total 1972 wheat area in Kansas, Montana, North Dakota and Washington.

Some of the 25 million additional acres had to come from plantings in lands where there is marginal rainfall, Laird said. He said the remainder had to come at the expense of reductions in the sowing of other crops.

"It's robbing Peter to pay Paul," said the student of Soviet agriculture.

He said grasses and other plants sown for fodder must have suffered the greatest reductions. In turn, this will mean a reduction in the production of meat, milk and eggs, Laird said.

"I am persuaded that the Russians have just three options," he said.

"One, they will have to depend on a miracle; two, cut back on their promises to feed their people better, or three, go back into the market to buy more grain from us."

He said the miracle would be favorable weather to maintain production on the marginal lands.

Laird said that under Nikita Khrushchev a policy was adopted of plowing vast areas of virgin grass lands in regions of marginal rainfall.

He said this policy culminated in disaster because of a 1963 drought.

Laird said that to repeat the Khrushchev gamble on marginal lands could result in devastating duststorms and erosion.

Cutting back on promises to feed their people better would be undesirable from the view of Soviet leaders and perhaps politically untenable, he said.

Laird said if the Soviet leaders decide that relying on the purchase of grain from outside the Soviet Union is the most acceptable option, they would have the goal of buying grain at the lowest possible price.

He said the Russian leaders undoubtedly will emphasize repeatedly that a production of 195 million tons is an increase of 27 million tons from the 1972 crop.

He said this would equal approximately the wheat production of the United States.

"Grain prices are not just a reflection of supply and demand," said Laird. "More accurately, the price of grain is determined by the sometimes faulty judgment of the major buyers and sellers of grain as to what the supply and demand will be."

'Prince of satire' local BPW speaker

Orville R. Goerger

Orville R. Goerger, recently retired director of public relations and advertising for Mercantile Trust Co., St. Louis, was introduced as the "crowned prince of satire" Thursday night at the Business and Professional Women's club public relations dinner at the Bothwell Hotel.

Goerger, who has lectured on advertising and public relations at several Midwestern universities, said that people know too little about public relations and tend to equate it with advertising.

"But it's nothing like advertising," he said. Public relations tells people about an organization and its progress, he added.

Goerger described marriage as a good example of public relations. He said marriage is a "friendship that got out of control."

He also said that a good public relations man will "find out what people like and give them more of it ... and find out what they don't like and eliminate it."

Goerger said public relations can take many forms, such as an ad that is used to relay a p.r. message, or publicity in the news media.

"But you can't write public relations ... you can't create it in words because it is a combined effort of all the people involved in an organization," he said.

"The secret of p.r. is understanding people ... and realizing how much people want to be understood," Goerger said.

"To make p.r. work," he concluded, "you have to have faith in it."

In addition to his experience as a lecturer, Goerger also has served as a moderator on television panel shows.

Goerger was named "Advertising Man of the Year" and received the Printers' Ink Silver Medal Award in 1967. He also has received six national awards from the direct Mail Advertising Association.

Richardson puts job ahead of politics

Rowan

We Americans have known that for years, yet we have watched meekly as presidents of both parties have put campaign managers and chief political advisers in the job of attorney general of the United States.

A lot of Americans (including Democrats, not the least being Lyndon B. Johnson) were deeply distrustful of the fair and impartial workings of justice with Robert F. Kennedy running the Justice Department.

Even more people regarded it as an outrage that John N. Mitchell should be in a position to decide who got bugged or wiretapped, who got indicted and who got prosecuted with how much fervor — because his chief claim to the attorney generalship was his service as Nixon's campaign manager.

But now we see Elliot L. Richardson putting on an amazing exhibition of the kind of independent, gutsy regard for the law that Americans ought always demand from an attorney general.

It is almost incredible that a Republican attorney general should move so doggedly toward the possible indictment and even imprisonment of a Republican vice president. It is remarkable that he should be strong enough and firm enough to win the assent of the President for such action, for President Nixon surely knows that to drag Agnew into shame at a time when Watergate taints the presidency can only add new layers of infamy to his administration.

Richardson apparently is moving relentlessly against Agnew out of a conviction that the institutions of justice in America cannot withstand what the public would regard as another bald attempt to cover up high-level crime.

Agnew's speeches make it clear that he doesn't think Richardson deserves any bouquets for taking justice out of the grip of politics. Agnew suggests that what the Justice Department is trying to do to him is the rankest sort of politics — that Henry Petersen and others in Justice are trying to kill him off as the "big trophy" which will make the American people forget how they bungled the Watergate investigation.

Some of Agnew's friends go further and suggest that Richardson may be the most venally political of all attorneys general because he is leading a "plot" to focus national attention on Agnew and make the public forget Mr. Nixon's Watergate woes.

This argument loses plausibility for one overpowering reason: the same Justice Department that has Agnew fighting for his political life, his reputation, his personal freedom, is the Justice Department that plunged the President into a grave crisis over the Watergate tapes.

Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox works for Richardson. Theoretically, both work for President Nixon. Yet, Cox has shown independence and integrity that, I confess, I never thought the White House would permit.

It is Cox's demand for those tapes, far more than the Ervin committee's demand for them, that has put Mr. Nixon between a rock (surrendering evidence that may suggest his own guilt) and a hard place (defying the federal courts and inviting impeachment).

All this is not to say that Richardson himself is not a politician. He surely has ambitions for higher office. But he is establishing himself as the honorable kind of politician who will not try to climb to power by debasing the principles of law, justice, decency.

Richardson is to be commended for knowing that he could stand so firmly without being driven out of office. Yet, it ought not to have taken a colossal ego for Richardson to surmise that President Nixon could not afford to ignore him and fire him. The President had called on him when the administration of the State Department was in a mess, when the huge, chronically mismanaged Department of Health, Education and Welfare was leaderless; when the hopelessly wasteful and ungovernable Department of Defense needed a new boss, and, finally, when the Justice Department became critical to the maintenance of even a shred of public faith in the workings of this administration.

Richardson leaped out with courage when Agnew assailed his deputies, including Petersen. Richardson stated emphatically that HE is making the decisions as to the Agnew prosecution, and that if Agnew's followers want to "get" anyone he is the man they must go after.

This Boston Brahmin Richardson, who can seem cold and colorless, with nothing of the bombastic rhetoric so typical of Agnew, or the egotistical flair so common to John Connally, may turn out to be a hard man to "get."

Nation is shocked by Boston slayings

Although the nation has every reason to be shock-immune, there are still incidents that can make us shrink back in numbed disbelief.

One such episode occurred Tuesday night in Boston, when a 24-year-old white social worker was burned to death on the street by a gang of black youths. Mrs. Evelyn Wagler was beaten until she consented to pour gasoline over her body, after which one of the youths flipped a match on her.

The murder occurred in the black Roxbury section of Boston. Police could establish no motive, except racial hatred. Mrs. Wagler was reportedly told that whites were not wanted in the Roxbury area.

Police are also baffled at the apparent lack of witnesses to the crime, pointing out that it happened at an early hour in a well-lighted section of the city.

Brutal violence erupted in Boston again Thursday, when a 65-year-old fisherman, Ludovico Barba, was stoned and stabbed to death by a band of 30 to 40 black youths. His body was found floating in the bay.

Such "no-witness" crimes are becoming commonplace in black sections of our cities. The unwritten code seems to be that one brother does not turn in another, especially when the victim is white.

The president of the St. Louis board of police commissioners, himself a black, recently addressed himself to this problem. Theodore D. McNeal said in part:

"I am convinced that there are not and never will be enough police to reduce and control crime in our cities until and unless the black community becomes actually and actively involved in the overall war against crime.

"We cannot curb crime as long as large numbers of black citizens act as if they were deaf, dumb and blind when a crime is committed in their presence..."

The heinous murders of Evelyn Wagler and Ludovico Barba cry out for justice. But until someone in Roxbury decides to speak up, it likely will not be done.

ECLIPSE

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Secret spy reports, telling of AFL-CIO President George Meany's testiness toward the Democratic presidential contenders, persuaded President Nixon to court the old labor curmudgeon during the 1972 campaign.

White House sources tell us H. R. Haldeman, then the President's chief of staff, opposed any rapprochement with labor. The spy reports, however, quoted caustic outbursts from Meany against the leading Democrats and pleaded that the old warhorse could be won over with a presidential pat on the head.

This finally convinced Nixon to carry on a flirtation with Meany for the duration of the campaign. The stormy courtship, however, was based on espionage information which Meany now disputes.

The Nixon spy, Seymour Freidin, reported to the White House that he spoke to Meany off-the-record on at least three occasions, once over a gin rummy game. But when we made Freidin's reports available to the AFL-CIO boss, he sent back word: "This is absolute nonsense. I never saw Freidin in my life. I never talked with him. I've never been interviewed by him."

Freidin's reports from inside the AFL-CIO began on April 13, 1971. He quoted AFL-CIO advisor Jay Lovestone as telling him at an off-the-record lunch that Meany had "chewed out" Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., over his opposition to the supersonic transport plane "as if he were a kindergarten brat. The old man told Hubert... that he couldn't get a nickel from the AFL-CIO if he (Meany) could manage it."

On Sept. 7, 1971, Freidin sent another report to the White House telling how Meany had disparaged the Democrats. "George Meany was in crusty, acidulous form when I met with him for 40 minutes over the Labor Day weekend," reported Freidin. "This meeting was off-the-record."

When Humphrey's name came up, according to Freidin, Meany snorted: "He is so screwed up that he even tries to make

Merry-go-round

Meany was subject of Freidin reports out that he's 35-years-old. That silly b—— even has his hair dyed at least once a week. It shines with a red tinge ... He's going no place."

Meany reportedly referred to Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., then leading the presidential polls, contemptuously as "Shmuskie." Freidin quoted Lovestone as explaining that Muskie was "a bad Polish joke."

In those pre-primary days, Meany reportedly dismissed Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., with a snort and a prophetic crack: "He's the kind of guy who would make us Republicans or we wouldn't vote at all or support anyone."

But the following July, over a gin rummy hand at the Democratic convention, Meany supposedly told Freidin caustically: "(McGovern) is unprincipled; he's a creep. I wouldn't trust him even if he stayed in my sight."

Freidin's reports strongly suggest that the President should butter up Meany personally. The crusty labor lord suffered from a "bruised ego," wrote Freidin. "Meany wants to bargain with or talk directly to the President. This came through loud and clear at least half a dozen times in our conversation."

Freidin quoted Meany as grumping: "How the hell do you cooperate (with the White House) if you can't talk to the team manager, only to his assistant coaches?"

Freidin urged on Jan. 11, 1972, that Meany wanted "to somehow patch things up with the President and at the same time, save face ... He said of the box of cigars the President sent him as a Christmas gift: 'It was very thoughtful. I wish that he'd also had the time to call and say hello.' In other words it seems Meany would dearly love to have a call from the President inquiring into his health."

Eventually the call came.

CAMERA CONSCIOUS — President Nixon's classy armored limousine costs the taxpayers $12,000 a year in rental fees, but the President seldom uses it. Insiders say it's because the bulletproof glass in the 1972 Lincoln distorts camera shots of him.

Nixon, who already has enough image problems as a result of Watergate, therefore, uses the 1968 custom-designed limousine. This costs $5,000 a year from its owners, the Ford Motor Company. The White House says that Nixon uses the older car, not because the new car distorts his image, but because he prefers the older limousine.

PRESS PRIVILEGE — Hank Greenspun, the hard-hitting publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, refused last week to turn over documents to the special Watergate prosecutors. They summoned Greenspun to question him about the plot by the Watergate conspirators to crack open his office safe.

This contained private memos in Howard Hughes' handwriting, which the eccentric billionaire's henchmen would like to get. The prosecutors are curious about the strange, undercover cooperation between the Hughes organization and the Watergate team.

Greenspun told the prosecutors, according to Justice Department sources, that he was carrying the papers in his briefcase but wouldn't produce them. He said the papers belonged to his newspaper and, therefore, were protected by the First Amendment. As a matter of principle, he said, he wouldn't cooperate.

Although maple syrup is a good cash crop, far fewer trees are tapped today than 50 years ago. Many farmers have sold large numbers of sugar and black maple trees for profitable timber; some have turned to alternative crops for larger returns, and others have decided that sugaring just isn't worth the effort.

Those good ole Thirties

By DOUG KNEIBERT

I think it's an indication of how bad things are getting when we start looking back with nostalgia at the 30s.

The other day I received a gift catalogue from a very posh mail order house that by some computer error put me on their list. The really big item this season — are you ready? — is a replica of the Philco "cathedral" table-top radio, circa 1932. It can be yours for a modest $60.

Although the ad doesn't say, I suppose authentic 1930s static costs extra.

The only trouble with this particular nostalgia kick is that the music you get on the radio today isn't very Thirtyish. In place of the mellow tones of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, today you have some groovin' dude laying a form of electronic torture on your eardrums not seen since the Tong Wars.

But why stop with old radios? How about capturing the real feeling of the Golden Thirties with an authentic decorator apple cart, the kind pappa used to push around town?

The lady of the house would be sure to love a period soup kitchen, complete with steam-peeled wallpaper. Give her more of a feel for the good old days with a vinyl wood grain washboard and matching wringer, plus a real ice box.

There are endless possibilities here. Some entrepreneur could start manufacturing the old wind-up Victrola again, suitable for 78 r.p.m. records. It would be a darn sight cheaper than multiplex stereo.

I see a market for chromium-plated WPA shovels, simulated bankruptcy petitions, Dior work dresses and NRA eagle wallpaper, to mention only a few ideas.

To top it all off, maybe the federal government could simulate a depression, an area in which George Shultz, Arthur Burns and others are already working hard.

Mrs. William H. Reid, 2012 West 14th, in response to an invitation made in this column recently, loaned me some historic Pettis County letters the other day.

The correspondence is between members of the Reuben E. Gentry family — the first settlers in the county. The letters, still in a good state of preservation, are dated 1832 to 1837.

Characteristic of the period, the penmanship is quite beautiful and even. That's a lost art if there ever was one.

Books are being recorded on microfilm not only to save space but also to preserve them. Many books are deteriorating in American libraries because publishers after 1870 began using paper made from wood pulp instead of from rag. The World Almanac notes. "You got that haircut to bug me, didn't you, son?"

Penn State invades Air Force Academy

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Penn State goes to war with the Air Force Saturday.

The seventh-ranked Nittany Lions invade the rarified air of Colorado Springs, Colo., in a hopeful step toward the top of the college football ladder.

Penn State has the momentum and Air Force the motive in this battle of inter-sectional unbeaten.

The Nittany Lions have won opening games over Stanford, Navy and Iowa. The Air Force has beaten Oregon and New Mexico this season, but never Penn State.

In two previous home-and-home meetings, Penn State was a winner, although two years ago the service academy gave the Nittany Lions some problems before losing 16-14.

The Air Force quarterback of that day, Richie Haynie, will lead the home team against the imposing visitors from the East.

Coch Joe Paterno has marshaled a tough Penn State bunch, reminiscent of the glamor squads of 1968 and 1969 which went unbeaten in 31 games.

Ironically, it was in the Colorado Springs vicinity that the famous 31-game string was broken in 1970—when Colorado handed Penn State a humiliating defeat before millions on national television.

It doesn't figure to happen again, however, despite some feeling that the high altitude affects visiting football players.

Ohio State, the new No. 1 team, takes on Washington State in another battle involving a ranked club. The Buckeyes displaced Southern California after a big victory last weekend over Texas Christian University.

Southern California, which had held the No. 1 spot since last year when the Trojans were national champions, dropped three places as a result of a 7-7 tie with Oklahoma last Saturday. The fourth-ranked Trojans play Oregon State.

In other games involving Top Ten teams, it's No. 2 Nebraska at Minnesota; Georgia at No. 3 Alabama; Oregon at No. 5 Michigan; No. 17 Miami at No. 6 Oklahoma; Michigan at No. 8 Notre Dame; Kansas vs. No. 9 Tennessee and Florida against No. 10 Louisiana State.

Elsewhere, Texas Tech meets No. 11 Oklahoma State; No. 12

Arizona State visits New Mexico; No. 13 Texas hosts Wake Forest; No. 14 Houston travels to San Diego State; No. 15 Missouri is at No. 19 Southern Methodist; No. 18 Colorado visits Iowa State and No. 20 West Virginia tackles Indiana.

The Nittany Lions will throw a lot of ammunition at the Air Force—most notably, quarterback Tom Shuman, running back John Cappelletti and an awfully tough defense.

The Nittany Lions have allowed their opponents only 13 points, none in the first three quarters. This makes Penn State a two-touchdown favorite. Nebraska takes on Minnesota after an unimpressive outing last week against Wisconsin. The Cornhuskers, who opened the season with a romp over UCLA, could only manage a 20-16 decision over Wisconsin.

Alabama's overwhelming depth gave the Crimson Tide the edge over Georgia in a Southeastern Conference contest. Georgia comes into Tuscaloosa, Ala., with the memory of a 25-7 thrashing by Alabama last year.

Coch Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama doesn't see Georgia as a soft touch.

Georgia has some fine athletes and freshman (runner) Gene Washington has given them a new dimension which makes them an outstanding football team.

Oklahoma, off its impressive tie with mighty Southern Cal, has the coziness of a home stadium this time. It's the Sooners' home opener this season and a crowd of 58,000 is expected.

The Sooners have been openly critical of the wire service polls, many insisting that they should be ranked higher than Southern Cal after last week's tie. The general feeling at Oklahoma is that the Sooners outplayed the Trojans.

Before the Southern Cal game, Oklahoma trounced Baylor 44-14. Miami stunned Texas 20-15 in its opener last week.

Five of Saturday's games will be shown regionally on television—Penn State and Air Force; Missouri-Southern Methodist; Stanford-Illinois; North Carolina-North Carolina State and Grambling and Tennessee State.

One-two pitching punch

New York Mets' Manager Yogi Berra (center) chats with his two top pitchers for the upcoming National League playoff series with the Cincinnati Reds. Tom Seaver (left), the Mets' ace and Yogi's choice to start the opener on Saturday, had come up with a sore shoulder and for while it looked like Jon Matlack (right) would draw the starting assignment. However, Seaver is OK for Saturday's game. Matlack will go in Sunday's second game of the best-of-five series.

Board chairman stirs thought

Belief in themselves got NY back on track

NEW YORK (AP) — It started as a casual crack, born of the desperation that was consuming the New York Mets in mid-summer.

M. Donald Grant, the club's chairman of the board, decided a dressing room pep talk was in order. The substance of the speech was that the club should believe in itself and its ability to overcome its current adversity.

When Grant left the room, relief pitcher Tug McGraw took up the call. "You've got to believe," the left-hander said. It almost sounded like he was mimicking the boss but McGraw insisted he wasn't and even called Grant later to assure him that was not the case. "Everybody's got to believe in something," McGraw was saying as the Mets prepared to fly to Cincinnati today for Saturday's National League playoff opener against the Reds. "I believed in us."

There was no reason to for a long stretch of the season. Injuries kept picking apart Manager Yogi Berra's regular lineup. At various times, catcher Jerry Grote, first baseman John Milner, shortstop Bud Harrelson (twice), and left fielder Cleon Jones all spent terms on the disabled list.

Like McGraw, however, Berra believed. "If we ever get our team together, we still got a shot at it," said Yogi, even while the Mets were living in the NL East basement.

Third baseman Wayne Garrett, one of the Mets' most conspicuous September bats, remembered the seemingly endless string of injuries and the slow return to health of the team. "Then, one day," he said, "I looked around and everybody was playing where they were supposed to be."

That's when other people started believing too and that's also when the Mets began to move, vaulting over five other teams to grab the division crown.

"One good thing about those injuries," said General Manager Bob Scheffing, "Those guys aren't tired now. They can't be."

Then, of course, there was the always strong pitching staff... Tom Seaver and his three left-handed helpers, Jon Matlack, Jerry Koosman and George Stone.

There was one more factor, a relief pitcher named McGraw. Tug had been belted freely through much of the season but he suddenly surfaced in September, winning four games and saving 11 others.

"He was," said Berra, using that word again, "unbelievable."

FAYETTE — State Fair Community College suffered its first loss of the soccer season here Thursday, losing to Central Methodist College, 3-1.

Bill Simon put the Roadrunners ahead with their only goal of the game with just over 10 minutes gone in the first half. The Eagles came back to tie it up with about six minutes to go in the half.

They rang up two unanswered goals in the second half for the final margin.

Ron Lyle knocks out Blin in 2nd

DENVER (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Ron Lyle overcame his reputation as a slow starter Thursday night and used a brutal opening round body assault to set up his second-round knockout of Jurgen Blin of West Germany.

Lyle dazed Blin with a right to the head followed a split-second later by a finishing left hook at 1:01 of the second round, and the former European champion fell on his back and was counted out.

"I thought Ron was a lot slower than that," said Blin through an interpreter in the dressing rooms. "Ron hits harder than Muhammad Ali. He would be the hardest hitter in Europe."

Lyle, rated fifth in the world by the World Boxing Council, said Blin showed him nothing surprising as he gained his 25th victory in 26 fights. Nineteen of those have been by knockouts.

The Denver boxer weighed in at just over 213 for the scheduled 10-rounder and Blin at 192. The German also gave away several inches in height and reach.

Unitas gets his chance against Steelers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers turned him aside 18 years ago, but John Unitas got poetic justice. He became a star for the Baltimore Colts.

But since that time, Unitas has never played against the Steelers in Pittsburgh, and only twice has he faced them.

When the Colts played here in 1968, he was sidelined with an injury and Earl Morrall was the quarterback.

However, Unitas will be the quarterback for San Diego when the Chargers meet the Steelers here Sunday. Pittsburgh drafted Unitas in the ninth round in 1955, but then Steeler Coach Walt Kiesling decided to go with veteran Jim Finks, backup Ted Marchibroda and rookie Vic Eaton, also a defensive back, as his three quarterbacks.

Unitas was released before the regular season began and failed to catch on with another National Football League team that year.

In 1955, he played sandlot football with the Bloomfield

Rams, and the Colts signed him in 1956. The rest is well-known history.

Unitas, now 40, was traded to the Chargers after last season, and just last week went over the 40,000-yard mark in passing yardage.

Though his brilliance may be gone, Steeler Coach Chuck Noll says he's still an excellent quarterback.

"Same old John," said Noll, a former defensive coach with the Colts when Unitas was with Baltimore. "Still throws them in there."

"He sets you up with the short pass, then the long—mixes them well. And he uses every tool available."

Thus far, the Chargers, 1-2, have had fewer tools on the offensive line than Unitas apparently needs. He's been sacked 13 times in three games.

Meanwhile, after committing a league-high 48 turnovers last year, the Chargers have 12 this far this year.

Despite throwing under duress, Unitas has completed 47 per cent of his passes and has thrown three for touchdowns.

However, last week, Gary Garrison, Unitas' favorite receiver, dislocated his shoulder and will not play against the Steelers.

Pittsburgh, 3-0, and the only undefeated team in the American Football Conference, has given up just 23 points in three games and only two touchdowns, both on passes. Steeler opponents are averaging a meager 85 yards rushing a game, an average of 2.8 yards per carry.

Andretti sets world closed track record

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Mario Andretti says he's glad to be up front.

The 33-year-old racing veteran, driving an Offenhauser-powered Viceroy Special, set a world closed course speed record Thursday with a 214.158 miles per hour clocking during qualifying for the United States Auto Club championship 200-mile race.

Andretti, of Nazareth, Pa., smashed the old mark of 212.766 m.p.h. set here last April by Bobby Unser, who failed to make the starting lineup this time.

The race is the first part of a USAC doubleheader scheduled Saturday at Texas World Speedway.

Qualifying for the stock car leg of the Texas Twin 200 was to be held today.

"I'm just glad to be up front," Andretti said after his record run secured the pole position for Sunday's championship segment of the Twin 200.

"The air is clean and at the speed we go there's a lot of turbulence in the middle of the pack, particularly at the start of the race. When you're back there it's not too much of a pleasure."

The 26 cars in Saturday's Indy car race have an average speed of 202.109 mph, making the starting lineup the fastest field of cars in motor racing history. Nineteen of the 26 starters qualified at over 200 miles per hour.

Lee Kunzman will be starting next to Andretti in the first row. The Guttenberg, Iowa racer was clocked at 212.703 miles per hour in his Coble Firestone, Eagle City.

IOC faces changes

VARNA, Bulgaria (AP) — After listening for four days to demands for reform, the International Olympic Committee went into session here today to face the challenge of changing with the times.

"The moment has come when the IOC must change itself from a static to a dynamic body," said Swiss sports official Tom Keller, as the first Olympic Congress in 43 years ended here Thursday.

Keller, president of a group which includes 23 of the 26 Olympic-affiliated international sports federations, led the chorus of calls for change.

The IOC must wrestle with several clear demands voiced with near unanimity at the congress.

First, and perhaps most painful, the IOC must deal with raising the quality of its own membership.

The IOC has 73 members, all male, average age 62, with 14 members over 70. Fifteen members have titles. They include a sultan, a king, a Moslem prince and four Christian princes. The dean is David George-Brownlow, Earl Lord Burghley, Sixth Marquess of Exeter.

Speaking for the national Olympic committees at the congress ended, Italian IOC member Giulio Onesti said the Olympic committees "would like to see the selection of candidates made more objectively so the choices may always fall on people who really belong to the world of sports and know its problems inside out."

A congress committee specifically called for women members.

Another painful task the IOC will have to consider is sharing some of its supreme Olympic authority, wielded until last year almost single-handedly by American Avery Brundage. Brundage was succeeded as chairman by Lord Killanin of Ireland.

The muscle-flexing sports federation led by the dynamic Keller, want if say in the choice of Olympic sites and in setting eligibility rules, previously matters the IOC handled alone.

Rules on amateurism will certainly be relaxed in the next year to reflect sports realities.

Expect running show in Colorado, Iowa State game

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The team with the best running attack may come out on top Saturday when the Colorado Buffaloes and the Iowa State Cyclones collide at Ames, Iowa, in the season's first fireworks between two Big Eight Conference clubs.

Both Colorado and Iowa State have brilliant runners. Charlie Davis, freshman Billy Waddy and Bo Matthews of the Buffs and Mike Strachan and sophomore quarterback Wayne Stanley of the Cyclones.

Strachan is currently the league's No. 3 rusher, having carried 52 times for 212 yards. Matthews, 12th, has begged 197 yards on 32 thrusts and only last week ripped the Baylor defense for 140 yards in the Buffs' 52-28 triumph over the Bears. Stanley, with 197 yards on 24 rushes, is a notch below Matthews and also has completed 15 of 34 passes for another 255 yards.

Stanley leads the conference in total offense. Waddy, sharing the tailback role with Davis, has picked up 238 yards on 31 attempts.

Aside from the Buff-Cyclone league lid-fitter, there are big nonconference games on the schedule, two in particular certain to claim headline attention. The 15th-ranked Missouri Tigers invade 19th-rated Southern Methodist, and the Kansas Jayhawks, so far the conference surprise with one of the nation's top defenses, move into Memphis, Tenn., to battle ninth-ranked Tennessee. All four teams have 3-0 records.

Elsewhere, second-ranked Nebraska gets its first road test at Minnesota, and sixth-ranked Oklahoma, which surprised last week by playing then top-ranked Southern California to a 7-7 deadlock, makes its first appearance at home against 17th-ranked Miami of Florida.

Oklahoma State, 11th ranked and leading the league in total offense, plays Texas Tech at Stillwater, Okla. Kansas State, with two consecutive shutouts, is host to Memphis State.

Like Kansas and Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma State have 3-0 marks. Oklahoma is 1-0-1 and Kansas State 2-1.

Colorado, 18th in the nation, has won two and lost one, and Iowa State has split two games.

"Iowa State indicated as early as last spring that Colorado was going to be a game in which they would make their best shot," says Buff Coach Eddie Crowder.

Coach Earle Bruce, in his first year at Iowa State, let it be known early the Cyclones had championship ambitions and regards the Colorado game as a good test.

SMU will throw Coach Dave Smith's version of the wishbone, the one he operated so successfully as the Oklahoma State boss last year, at Missouri. In three games, SMU has rushed for 1,304 yards and thrown only 14 passes.

"They've shown an awful lot of power," says Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "both offensively and defensively thus far."

The Kansas Jayhawks, who have intercepted 10 passes and recovered eight fumbles, will attempt to blend Dave Jaynes' passes to Emmett Edwards and Bruce Adams with the running of Delvin Williams and Robert Miller in their biggest test so far. Tennessee also has one of the nation's best quarterbacks, Conredge Holloway.

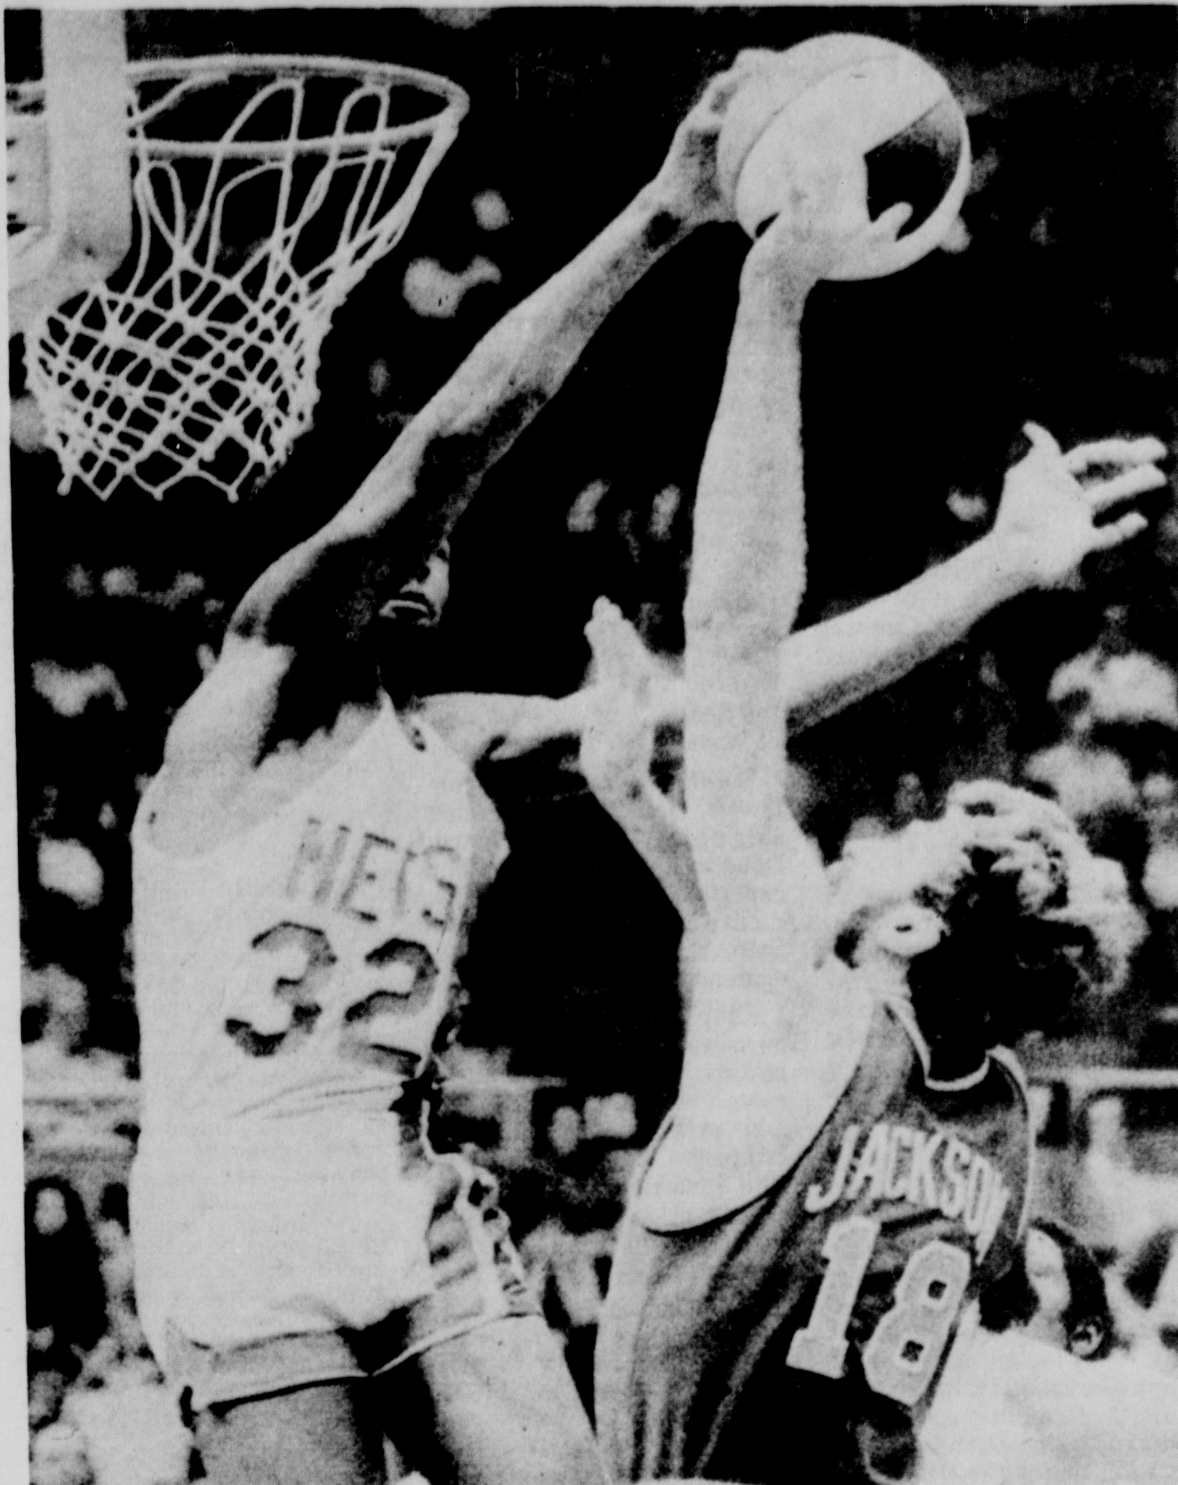

In Minnesota, Nebraska, given a scare in its last two outings, will be facing a team that Kansas beat last week 34-19. The Cornhuskers should breathe easier Saturday although Coach Tom Osborne notes that Minnesota "runs the veer offense similar to the one run by North Carolina State which gave us some problems."

Even though Oklahoma is heavily favored over Miami, the Sooners are aware that the Hurricanes stopped Texas two weeks ago and, as Coach Barry Switzer says, "We know what Texas is." If Sooners' injured left knee is ready, much of the Sooners' anticipated problem should be solved.

Oklahoma State, averaging nearly 55 points a game, has quarterback Brent Blackman and fullback George Palmer ready to roll against the Red Raiders, who are 1-2 after losing to Texas last week. Cowboy Coach Jim Stanley asserts that Tech "has the best defensive secondary we've seen this year."

Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State regards Memphis State as "the most explosive team we've faced. They are capable of breaking a game open with their kick returns."

The Wildcats undoubtedly will have to keep a close eye on a freshman split end, Bobby Ward, who catches passes and returns punts and kickoffs with the best of them.

Continue restraining order

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Frank G. Theis has continued his restraining order issued Sept. 20 permitting a Wichita high school girl to compete in cross-country running with a boys team.

Judge Theis held a hearing here Thursday in a suit filed by Tammie S. Gilpin, a Wichita Southeast High School junior, who alleged she had been kept from competing in cross-country competition solely because of her sex.

In testimony Thursday Brice Durbin, executive secretary of the Kansas State High School Activities Association, testified that present athletic programs for girls will "effectively be killed" if mixed teams are permitted in high school competition.

Durbin said athletic records and physiological reports show the athletic prowess of girls is not as great as boys. Permitting mixed teams would mean few girls would have the opportunity to compete, he said.

Charles J. Hatter, Southeast's cross-country coach, testified Miss Gilpin had competed in two meets in September and her participation with the boys' teams produced no adverse effects. He said in one meet she finished 80th in a field of 167 entrants in "C" class, and in another finished 110th out of 179 in "B" class.

Robert Howard, an attorney for the Wichita Board of Education, said the controversy appeared to be between Miss Gilpin and the KSHSAA, which has prohibited mixed teams. He said the board has agreed to affirm its position that Miss Gilpin be permitted to compete on the boys' team subject to further orders of the court.

Predict Vikings, Cowboys unbeaten strings will end

NEW YORK (AP) — The moment of truth arrives this Sunday for the Minnesota Vikings and the Dallas Cowboys.

Counted out as championship contenders in many preseason estimates, the Vikings and Cowboys each have put together three straight victories and head into the fourth weekend of the 1973 National Football League season as two of the four unbeaten and untied teams. The others are the Pittsburgh Steelers and the surprising Los Angeles Rams.

The downfall of both the Vikings and the Cowboys, so the preseason guessing went, would come from aging defensive units—Dallas' Domsday Defense and the Vikings' Purple Gang.

So, who's got the best scoring defense in the National Conference? And who's No. 2?

Dallas has yielded 30 points in three games, Minnesota 32.

The Vikings face the Detroit Lions, a team that Minnesota has mangled the last 10 times the two met, on Sunday. The Cowboys play the Washington Redskins in the Monday night television game. Both Minnesota and Dallas are on the road.

Will these two teams play like they've been playing...or like they were expected to before the season started?

Before attempting to answer these and other pressing questions, let's quietly whisper that last week's Fearless Forecast was a lousy seven right, six wrong. That dropped the average to .703 with a 26-112 showing.

Minnesota (3-0) at Detroit (11-1) — The Vikings are favored to make it 11 straight over the Lions. But all good things must come to an end sometimes, so...LIONS 24, VIKINGS 21.

San Diego (1-2) at Pittsburgh (3-0) — The Steelers' defense against scoring, best in the American Conference, has given up seven fewer points than the Cowboys, best in the NFC. No wonder the Chargers are 18-point underdogs. Who can argue with that spread. STEELERS 30, CHARGERS 10.

Los Angeles (3-0) at Houston (0-3) — Can you think of any reason why it won't be 4-0 and 0-4 after this Sunday. Even if Sid Gillman, the Houston general manager, is helping out with the Oilers offense? RAMS 42, OILERS 21.

Cincinnati (2-1) at Cleveland (2-1) — Cleveland's offense hasn't scored a touchdown in nine quarters but Don Cockcroft's field goals gave the Browns a victory last week. The Bengals are having problems, too. In this bitter Ohio rivalry all but one of the games have been decided by four points or less. Cleveland is at home, because of the baseball playoffs, so...BROWNS 24, BENGALS 21.

New York Jets (1-2) at Miami (2-1) — Another game switched because of the baseball playoffs. It might have been interesting if Broadway Joe was playing. Bob Griese and Company by about any margin they want. DOLPHINS 35, JETS 20.

Green Bay (1-1) vs. New York Giants (1-1) at New Haven — The Giants make

Northwest Mustangs win softball crown

Only one baseball-softball doubleheader was played in the Kaysinger Conference Thursday night. The balance of the slate was postponed due to wet grounds.

In the lone doubleheader played, Northwest (Hughesville) completed its undefeated streak and won the league's girls softball championship, defeating LaMonte, 10-5.

The win made it a sweep for the Mustangs. The boys baseball team won the baseball opener, 4-3. Both teams went into the contest seeking their first win in seven outings. The loss leaves LaMonte at the bottom of the eight-team conference with a final mark of 0-7 in league play. Northwest wound up at 1-6.

Leonard Huddleston picked up the win, his first of the year. He struck out 14.

Two key games were postponed due to wet grounds. Cole Camp (5-1) was scheduled to take on Lincoln (4-2), while Warsaw (5-1) and Smithton (3-their debut in their new temporary home. PACKERS 21, GIANTS 18.

Denver (1-2) at Kansas City (2-1) — Don't count Kansas City out. That was the warning the Chiefs gave Oakland last week. The Broncos, meanwhile, had seven turnovers against the Bears. CHIEFS 31, BRONCOS 24.

Philadelphia (0-2-1) at Buffalo (2-1) — Look who's tied for first place in the AFC East with the Miami Dolphins. Buffalo, that's who. The Bills should still be there after this Sunday. BILLS 17, EAGLES 13.

Oakland (1-2) at St. Louis (2-1) — Oakland's offense hasn't scored a touchdown yet this season with most of the Raider points coming off ageless George Blanda's toe. This should be the week that Daryle Lamonia or Ken Stabler find the range. The Cardinals had their moments of glory earlier. RAIDERS 28, CARDINALS 21.

San Francisco (1-2) at Atlanta (1-2) — It's about time that John Brodie had one of his Prime days again. 49ERS 30, FALCONS 14.

Chicago (1-2) at New Orleans (0-3) — The Bears pulled off a big upset last Sunday. The Saints beat the point spread, but lost again. But the Saints have never beaten the Bears, and they won't this time either. BEARS 24, SAINTS 16.

Baltimore (1-2) at New England (0-3) — Some people might say it would be an upset if either team wins. Baltimore's new coach, Howard Schnellenberger, got his first victory last week. New England's new coach, Chuck Fairbanks, won't get his this week, unless he can sneak in his old Oklahoma team. COLTS 20, PATRIOTS 17.

Dallas (3-0) at Washington (2-1) — The Cowboys haven't forgotten that 26-3 pasting they got from Washington in the NFC championship game last year. But it's time for the Redskins to get into high gear and Duane Thomas has a score to settle with the Cowboys. REDSKINS 20, COWBOYS 18.

3). But it looks like the league championship won't be completely decided until next spring, when Warsaw and Smithton finally meet.

The Cole Camp-Lincoln game will probably be made up this fall, however, a rescheduled date has not been set.

Should Warsaw and Cole Camp both win their final games, the league would wind up in a two-way tie.

Experience on A's side says Williams

OAKLAND (AP) — In 1971, the Oakland A's were humiliated in their first American League playoff appearance since moving to Oakland. Manager Dick Williams chalked that up to experience—inexperience.

But now he says experience will be on his side when the A's meet Baltimore here Saturday in the opening game of this year's best-of-5 playoffs.

O's have two keys for Oakland

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles decline to predict victory in the best-of-5 American League playoffs, but at least they agree on the best formula for beating the Oakland Athletics.

With Saturday's opening game approaching, the most repeated suggestions are "don't let them hit the ball out of the park" and "keep Campaneris off base."

The A's, baseball's defending champions, walloped 147 home runs and Campy Campaneris swiped 34 bases during the march toward another Western Division championship.

Campaneris, with 12 hits and four stolen bases, proved a pesky adversary for the Orioles in 1973 as the A's won the season series 7-5. Every A's victory was by one or two runs and three were decided in extra innings.

"If you can keep Oakland batters 'in the park,' you've got a chance," said pitcher Dave McNally, who was touched for five of his 16 homers by Oakland while losing three of four decisions to the A's.

"And, when Campaneris gets on base," McNally said, "he usually steals second after a couple of pitches, and then he can score on any kind of hit."

"They had the advantage on us then," Williams said Thursday, referring to the 1971 experience when the Orioles swept three straight. "But we've got it now in that respect."

Before the A's stepped aboard their airplane for Baltimore Thursday, Williams said he probably will not tamper much with the World Champion A's batting order.

"The place where I haven't yet definitely made a choice is below Reggie Jackson. It could be Gene Tenace hitting fifth, and designated hitter Deron Johnson sixth or vice versa," he said.

"Otherwise we're set with Campy Campaneris leading off, Joe Rudi batting second, Sal Bando third, Reggie cleanup, Gene or Deron fifth, Deron or Gene sixth, Angel Mangual seventh, Ray Fosse eighth and Dick Green ninth."

But pitching is where Williams feels he has the edge over 1971. For one thing, Williams recalled, the Orioles had four 20-game winners that year and had to use only three.

Six local boys to Higginsville

Six Sedalia boys will vie in the Ford Motor Company's Punt, Pass and Kick competition in the zone finals in Higginsville Saturday.

Representing Sedalia are Todd Lenz, Kevin Dinsdale, Jeff Flippin, Jim Brown, Brian Doty and Brian Shull. All won their respective divisions at Jennie Jaynes Stadium last week in the local finals.

Winners at Higginsville will advance to the district finals at Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City, Oct. 13.

Resentful Republican dished out 'medicine'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A resentful Florida Republican says he did campaign dirty work last year to give Democrats "a little bit of the medicine they had given me in the past."

He said he blames Democrats for impersonating a newsman and for distributing phony posters against former Rep. William Cramer, an unsuccessful GOP Senate candidate for whom he worked in 1970.

Robert Benz, 25, said he was still rankled by that experience when he agreed to take a $150-a-month job from Donald H. Segretti, an undercover White House agent who hired him and others to disrupt Democratic presidential primary campaigns last year.

Benz testified Thursday at the Senate Watergate committee's first blacked-out public hearing. No live television coverage was provided because ABC and NBC have ended their rotating coverage, and CBS is broadcasting selected testimony.

Benz said he hired spies, hecklers and pickets; ordered the stink-bombing of two of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's campaign posts on primary eve, and ordered mailing of the "sex letter," which accused Sen. Henry M. Jackson of being a homosexual and said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey once was found with a prostitute.

"I felt that if the Democrats got a little bit of a dose of their own type of activities, then they would be a little bit reluctant to do this to us in the future," said Benz, a loading-dock foreman from suburban Tampa.

He said he could not prove Democrats actually were responsible for the alleged anti-Cramer incidents in 1970, and he said he didn't mention them to authorities until the FBI began questioning him about his own activities early this year.

Benz, a reluctant witness, was compelled to testify before the Senate panel under a grant of immunity from prosecution.

Earlier Thursday, the committee heard from another Segretti associate, Martin Douglas Kelly, who repeatedly expressed regret for his own campaign of harassment against Democratic presidential contenders.

Kelly said he placed phony newspaper and radio ads, hired pickets, disrupted a Muskie news conference, dispensed false press releases and phony campaign leaflets, and once paid a female acquaintance $20 to strip naked in front of Muskie's hotel and yell, "Muskie, I love you."

The panel recessed its hearings until next Tuesday, when it plans tentatively to hear from two more alleged GOP spies.

In other Watergate-related developments Thursday: —U.S. District Court Judge

John J. Sirica took under advisement the committee's request for a ruling upholding its demand that Nixon give the committee tape recordings of Watergate-connected conversations. Sirica's lawyer contended in oral arguments Thursday that the panel had no authority to sue to seek the tapes.

—Convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy asked a federal appeals court for a new trial on the ground Sirica violated his constitutional rights in his trial in January.

Announcements

President Nixon said at his White House news conference Wednesday that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will visit Peking Oct. 26 to 29. The President also said he will go to Europe within the next three to four months. (UPI)

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Trichinosis is a rare disease

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing about my 24-year-old son. About a year and a half ago he contracted trichinosis. He was very sick and still is. He complains of pains in the legs, back or something. Sometimes there isn't enough life in his legs to walk and he feels tired all the time. Once in awhile he gets very disgusted and feels he will never be well. I am worried. He sees these "hippies" and says "Why me?" He is a very good boy. Please, Dr. Lamb, help me as I am a very worried mother.

Dear Reader — Trichinosis is a very uncommon disease, but it is more common in the United States than any other part of the world. It comes from pork infested with the trichinosis worm.

The incidence of trichinosis has declined sharply in the United States. It used to be quite high in New York City because the pork came from New Jersey and the hogs were fed on untreated garbage. New laws on meat storage and methods in raising pigs has helped.

A major method of transmitting the disease is from hamburgers in which the beef is diluted with pork or contaminated in the meat grinder. You can avoid this problem by grinding your own beef at home. Sausages and wursts are an important source of trichinosis.

It can be prevented. The best approach is to eliminate the infection in hogs to begin with. All garbage fed to hogs should be heat sterilized.

You can't depend on routine meat inspection to eliminate infected pork. The only real protection you have is in how you prepare it. The meat can be frozen at minus 32 degrees centigrade for several hours — but the low freezing levels required are not possible in the home so you have to depend on well cooked pork.

All pork should be cooked at 140 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes for each pound — and that means internal meat temperature. Anything less than this may not kill all the trichinosis.

Your boy must have had a very severe infection since mild cases are usually cured within a much shorter time. Thiabendazole, a relatively new medicine, has been very useful in most cases. Mild infestations often recover on their own. Residual muscle damage after an acute infection is unusual — but it does occur. After severe infestations muscle weakness and stiffness can persist for months or even years. The parasite actually invades the muscles and, even in some cases, the nervous system.

If the infection has been completely arrested then the process is really one of regaining muscle strength which is related to developing new muscle tissue. With patience and a consistent effort, muscle strength and a feeling of well-being can be regained.

I hope you have talked this over with your doctor. If he is confident that the infestation has been well controlled he might consider a physical program to regain strength. During the infection phase, however, patients are usually placed on limited activity or even bed rest.

MAXINE'S

Class on pornography in Greenwich Village

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Class began with the projected images of a nude threesome engaged in various sexual couplings. Then came an interview session with porn queen Marilyn Chambers.

This was no ordinary class.

It was the first of six sessions on "Pornography Uncovered, Eroticism Exposed" at the free-wheeling but legitimate New School for Social Research in New York's Greenwich Village.

"I would hope through this course that we can raise the level of appreciation for erotic expression," said Michael C. Luckman, 31, the school's publications director and initiator of the series.

"This country has tremendous sexual hangups," Luckman said. "I dare say for most of the people here it will be the first real confrontation with erotic expression."

The standing-room audience of more than 500 paid $3.50 for the evening, or $18 for the series. They were a mixed bunch—kempt and straggled-haired, youthful and middle-aged and blue-jeaned and manicured. More than half were women.

Besides an erotic puppet show, the students heard panelists express philosophies on obscenity laws.

"I was curious to see how they handle the topic," said Fritz Ehrlich, a divorced teacher with three grandchildren. "I was hoping they would shed some light on why they make movies so dull."

A 24-year-old Manhattan artist, Richard Martin, said he wanted to see where the law stood, but first confessed, "I'm here to meet stimulating people—you can put stimulating in quotes."

Miss Chambers, the star of "Behind the Green Door" and the cover girl for Ivory Soap boxes, appeared in blue jeans and blouse. The teacher introduced her and opened the floor to questions.

"I'd like to know how you do 30 or 40 takes?" one asked of the scenes in which sexual intercourse is vividly shown in the movie. And, "How do you go about getting discovered?"

To the first question, Miss Chambers said even four shootings of a scene were rare. To the second: "The way you go about it ... Come backstage..."
